
Rome booth follow-up: the network wave (for your quick go)

2026-07-08

Dirk, the lean version. One email, one list, no questions to answer. This is the broad booth network: the people who tapped the token at Booth #2 but were not one of your hot-account conversations (those are the separate pack). Your personal sends stay yours; SAP and partners are held.

I made the calls myself so you do not have to work a sheet; they are at the bottom if you want to flip any. On your go I load these as drafts in your Outlook and you send.

The email

Subject: Following up from the SAP conference in Rome

Hi {First},

Thanks for coming by our booth at the SAP Treasury and Working Capital conference in Rome. It is always hard to have a proper conversation at an event like that, so I wanted to follow up now and get it in properly.

The part I would want to show you is TreasuryCentral, the command center your team runs treasury from on live SAP data, with market data, trading, and AI automation and orchestration around it. All live with customers today, not on a roadmap.

A short call is probably easiest. Whenever suits you, reply and I'll keep the time.

Best regards, Dirk

One personal line for Coca-Cola Hellenic. Nikos Fragkos and Alexandros Bakatselos get an extra line just before the sign-off, as you asked:

Say hello to Galia for me.

Calls I made (flip any if you disagree)

- Leonid Opanasyk (DSV) held: the only address he left at the booth is a personal Gmail. In once we have his DSV address.
- Hywel Jones (TAC Insights) left out: event organiser, not a treasury contact.
- Customer labels dropped. The list no longer tags anyone as a client; that kept coming out wrong and it does not change this email anyway. I fixed the underlying client classification in the CRM separately.

How it sends

1:1 from dirk.neumann@brisken.com, one email each, staged as drafts in your Outlook. Say go and they are in your drafts.
